

Privacy Definitions

“The right to be let alone”

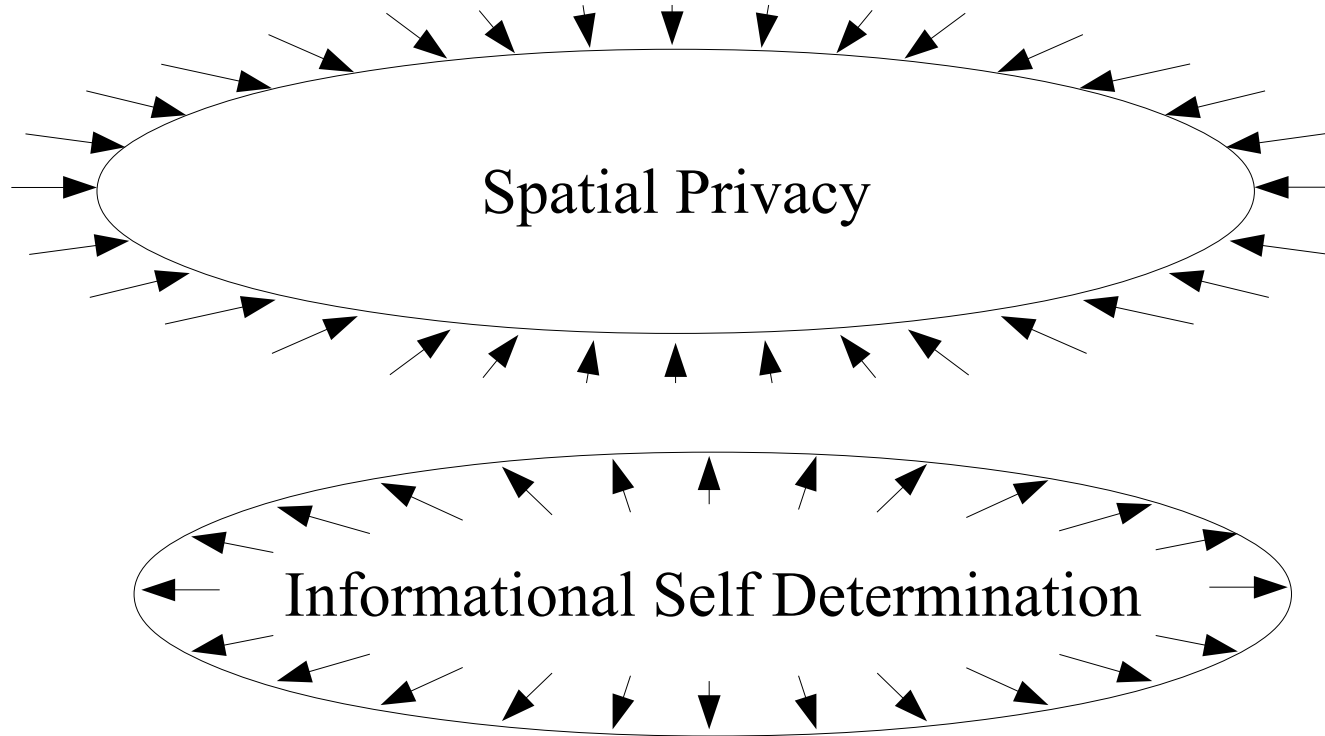

[Warren & Brandeis 1890]

“Privacy is the claim of individuals, groups and institutions to determine for themselves, when, how and to what extent information about them is communicated to others”[Westin67]

[Warren & Brandis 1890] S.D. Warren, L.D.Brandeis, “The Right to Privacy”, Harvard Law Review, 1890-1891, No.5, pp193-220

[Westin 1967] A. Westin, Privacy and Freedom, New York, 1987

Dimensions of privacy

Risks

- Life in a glass house
- Unfair to 'odd' people
- Adaptation dumbs down and threatens democracy
- Automation makes for decisions without nuance
- Justice systems erode
- A lost sense of control

Tor

